

Anacleta and Onelio Barranco

United Way of Miami-Dade

Improving health and independence

STATS

Anacleta and Onelio Barranco

- | | |
|--|---|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Both born in 1912• Met as children in Havana, Cuba• Married in the 1940s• Moved to Miami in the 1970s | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• They have one son and two grandchildren• Former professions: he was a shoemaker, she was a purse maker |
|--|---|

HIGHLIGHTS

Anacleta and Onelio Barranco have scored their share of outs — so many that Onelio's doctors benched him for the season, and Anacleta sits in the dugout by his side. Regardless of the obstacles they face, 92 years into their game, these two all-stars are still willing to play. With the help of a program that provides special assistance to the elderly, Anacleta now has what she needs to care for her husband and keep him out of nursing homes. That's a home run in anyone's book.

While many charities address one cause, United Way focuses on the whole community. Together, we're improving people's lives and creating sustainable change in Miami-Dade...that's what matters.

COLLECT ALL FOUR

Kids & families ✕ Health & independence

Emergency & basic needs ✕ Neighborhood involvement

www.unitedwaymiami.org